No Occasion For Alarm About Milk On Account of the Hoof and Mouth Disease

The wide publicity given to the discovery of some cases of hoof and mouth infection in some beef cattle that were imported from the stock yards for feeding purposes has necessarily alarmed the milk consumers of the District of Columbia to such an extent that I feel it my duty to make a pials statement as to the condition of the herds from which the milk I am supplying is received. So far as I know there has not been a case of hoof and mouth disease discovered in any dairy herd shipping milk to the District, and the only case that I know of anywhere in the milk sone was discovered in Maryland in a herd of heef cattle that were shipped in there from the stock yards for fattening purposes.

The major part of my supply of milk and cream comes from the State of Virginia. The State has not been put

JURY BLAMES RAILROAD

FOR CHILDREN'S DEATHS

Clement P. Robertson, killed at the Brentwood crossing of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad yesterday afternoon when struck by the New York-St. Louis express, returned a verdict late tonight, holding the railroad "directly responsible for their death owing to the fact that the crossing is inadequately protected."

John T. Cooper, engineer of the train, was the most important witness, testifying that his engine was about 100 yards a from the crossing when he may the horse step upon the railroad from behind an Clement P. Robertson, killed at the breaks, but could not avert the accident.

After the State's witnesses had been heard Coroner A. H. Dahler put the case in the hands of the jury. No evidence by Says Crossing Where Three Robertson Children Were Killed Is Inadequately Protected.

Hyattsville, Md., Nov. 14.—The coroner's jury at the inquest over the bodies of the three children of Mr. and Mr.

Bladensburg. The condition of Mrs. An-nette, C. Robertson, mother of the dead children, who was driving the team when it was struck, is reported tonight as favorable.
